Pluto was found in 1930. It used to be the ninth planet in the solar system until the IAU (國際天文聯盟) changed it on August 24, 2006.

Many astronomers argued about whether to call Pluto a planet or not. Some thought that it was too small to be called a planet—it is even smaller than the Moon. So, at a meeting in 2006, the astronomers decided to take Pluto off the list of planets in our solar system.

Now, there are eight planets in the solar system. But if you are a fan of Pluto, don't worry. Astronomers sometimes change the rules. Perhaps they will change their mind at the next meeting. Who knows?

People in Taiwan often do this. They buy drinks in bottles from convenience stores. After finishing the drinks, they throw the bottles into trash cans to recycle them. All looks fine with a good idea about environmental protection. Except for one thing. The lids of the bottles are not recycled along.

A study showed that people in Taiwan used up to 2800 million bottles each year. Although 95% of the bottles were successfully recycled, half of them didn't have their lids. In other words, every year about 1400 million lids were thrown away and that made Taiwan dirty. Though in a small size, the number of the bottle lids was listed the top five of all the trash at Taiwan's beaches.

To help deal with the serious problem, Taipei City held an art activity Under the Sea. All the art works shown in the activity were made of trash at the beaches, and most of them were made of bottle lids.

Of all the works made of bottle lids, Whale

Shark was the biggest. It was three meters long.

Some special sea animals of Taiwan, like green turtles and flying fish, could also be seen in the event. Besides these lid art works, Under the Sea also showed many things, video tapes, toys, dolls, shoes, clocks, and so on. All of them were picked up from the beaches. Taipei City hoped that with these art works and picked things, Under the Sea could make people notice the importance job of environmental protection again.
